Twenty Years of TAN

– Farewell Issue

THIS IS THE FAREWELL ISSUE OF TAN. LAUNCHED in 1981, and now 20 years "old," TAN is being retired.

There are two reasons for retirement. The first is financial. Escalating postal rates and an increasing number of subscribers have combined to make the costs of producing and distributing two issues of TAN per year approach $3000. This cost has been borne entirely by the Department of Anthropology at Saint Mary's University, and it is a cost that the Department can no longer bear – even with the frequent cost-cutting measure of producing a single, combined issue per year. The alternative, charging a subscription fee, would be expensive and cumbersome to administer and would reduce the number of subscribers to a point where production of TAN would not be worthwhile.

The second, and happier, reason is that, since its inception 20 years ago, the need for TAN has declined, because the number of other publications and organizations promoting precollege anthropology has increased. Since 1981, the American Anthropological Association and affiliated sections such as the Council on Anthropology and Education, General Anthropology Division, and Society for Anthropology in Community Colleges have all launched, or revived, precollege and teaching anthropology initiatives. To these can be added initiatives of the Society for Historical Archaeology, Society for American Archaeology, and United States National Parks Service, as well as the National Center for Science Education and the Smithsonian Institution, which publishes TAN's "sister" American newsletter AnthroNotes. A multitude of precollege anthropology resources is now available. A convenient way for TAN readers to gain access to many of them is to visit the web page of the American Anthropological Association's Anthropology Education Commission at <<http://www.aaanet.org/committees/commissions/aec/index.htm>> .

TAN has been published with the expert help of numerous individuals. Department of Anthropology secretaries, including current secretary Monica Lewis, have served as circulation managers. Anthropology faculty members Michelle Daveluy, Stephen Davis, James Jaquith, Harold McGee, Jr., and Susan Walter have supported the newsletter and approved funds for its design, printing, and mailing. In the early years, TAN was designed and printed "in house" at Saint Mary's University, but for many years it has been designed and printed at Dalhousie University, where the talented staff at Dal Graphics have been responsible for the steady improvement of its appearance.

As editor of TAN, I release myself from my duties with some regret but mainly with the confidence that TAN has served its purpose and can retire with pride. Finally, I thank all subscribers for their support and wish them well in all their precollege anthropology endeavors. They can still contact me at anthropology@stmarys.ca.

Teaching Anthropology Newsletter

Teaching Anthropology Newsletter (TAN) promotes precollege anthropology by providing curriculum information to teachers, creating a forum for teachers to exchange ideas, and establishing communication among teachers, professors, and other advocates of anthropology.

TAN is published free-of-charge semiannually in the Fall and Spring of each school year by the Department of Anthropology, Saint Mary's University, Halifax, Nova Scotia B3H 3C3 (TEL 902-420-5628, FAX 902-496-8109, E-MAIL anthropology@stmarys.ca). The Circulation Manager is Monica Lewis, and the Editor is Paul A. Erickson.
